This is not a proposal - it is only an idea. It may be a good one, but you must have a plan for how it will work. Mr. Bannerman has already approved the idea in principle. Now we need a plan he can approve - or take to the Executive Committee and get approval.

What kind of management or organization will there be? Who is going to be responsible administering supervising, and controlling these people? What is the chain of command?

Will you need space? Where will they work?

Who, when, where, how long will the training be conducted?

Let's have a plan - at least in outline form - concentrate on paragraph 6.
